18-22 January 2005, Kobe, Hyogo, Japan

Title	D-PAC Project 2005 Emergency Response Simulation
Organizations	The Crisis Management & Preparedness Organization
Speaker	理事・事務局長／細坪 信二
Report	“ D-PAC Project” is an education program for building stronger communities that are less dependent on the public sector, and where citizens, businesses and volunteers who live together in the community, use the own minds and work together, not in a reactive manner, but with the proactive mindset. This time, we are attempting to increase the response capabilities of the community when an emergency situation occurs by using a map based simulation. Participants perform in a simulated environment under the assumption that the map represents their own actual community. Using dice to randomize events, the simulation proceeds to establish damage, fires and injuries. Once the damage level and injuries have been established, the participants make decisions about how best to respond.
