

2003 World Disaster Reduction Campaign Let Us Hear From You!

The foremost goal of the World Disaster Reduction Campaign is to raise awareness through an interactive movement in which different parties are engaged, to create social pressure and change peoples' perceptions towards reducing the risks and vulnerabilities to the negative impacts of natural hazards. The campaign culminates on 8 October 2003 with the International Day for Disaster Reduction, when schools, communities, and organizations organize events and programmes which foster a culture of prevention. By sharing success stories about risk management, reduction and education, we can strengthen our capacity to reduce the impacts of future disasters. With this in mind, we want hear what your community, district or organization accomplished on this day. Send us your stories and pictures!
